Liberal advances made in anticipation of proceeds being realised, in all cases when so required, without incurring extra expense to his constituents, who have likewise the advantage of remaining in their houses up to the time of sale—a facility frequently of great moment to families.

Principals have only to give general instructions in such eases where they do not wish to be the spot, or are unsveidably absent. Sales effected by private contract when so directed; in either case, every care will be devoted that energy and practical experience can accomplish, to obtain the highest prices for the benedit of his clients.

Referring back to his long and varied experience, combined with a general knowledge of this particular branch of business, JOHN G. COHEN begs to assure those who may honour him with their confidence, that he will combinue to devote the same unremitting seal for the benefit of his constituents that has hitherto marked his carser, and which, in connection with his mederate charges, have produced such favourable results, and given general astisfaction to his numerous patrons.

To provide still further for the various interests confided to his care, the Auction Rooms have been further emlarged, and will shortly be completed; thus affording increased accommodation and space for the varied description of geods imported with this market.

TO GRAZIERS, AUCTIONEERS, and others having a STOCK for SALE.—To meet a want vary generally folt in the realization of Fat and other Stock, the undersigned has, at considerable expense, recently built yards at Petersham. Parramatta Bood, adjoining the lands of James Norton, Esq., within a few minutes walk of the railway station, for the SALE of CATTLE, SHEEF, and HORSES. These yards are constructed on the same principle as the cattle market in Melbourne, and being situated at a convenient distance from the public slaughter-houses, and close to the read leading thereto, in connection with which they are mainly intended to be used, the owners of cattle and sheep will be assured of obtaining the market prices, and the retail butchers will have the opportunity of buying live stock in small lots, to the extent of their requirements, instead of depending on large purchasers, as heretofore. Such is the course pursued in Melbourne, where it has been found advantageous and convenient alike to the owners of stock and the retail butchers, both of whom will be equally benefited by the adoption of the same practice here; and the slaughter-houses, which have been creeted at an enormous cost for the use of the public, will be brought into general requisition, instead of being, as at present, only partially used.

The Yards are named the "Victoria Cattle Market," and will be opened on the 14th instant. The scale of charges will be posted up at the Yards for the information and cenvenience of customers. Application for the use of the yards for the sale of cattle or other steck, to be made to Mr. DENNIS LANNE, on the premises; or to the undersigned,

JUHN BAFTIST, in returning thanks to the public graerally of New South Wales and the neighbouring colonies for past favours, offers for SALE, this season, the most extensive and varied stock of Fruit Trees, Flowering and Ornamental Trees and Shrubs, to be found in the Australian colonies.

The soil of his establishment being naturally poor, and exposed to the most trying winds, the advantage to purchasers getting trees from such a situation is evident. John Baptist offers this explanation as many parties are under the impression that all fruit trees, plants, &c., offered for sale by him are grown on rich soil.

John Baptist respectfully solicits intending purchasers to call at the nursery, and view his collection previous to purchasing, as he firmly believes they will be pleased with the growth and healthy state of all plants which will be offered to them. Prices mederate, and any person requiring a large number of plants will be dealt with on liberal terms. All orders from the country and neighbouring colonies punctually satewarded to. Trees and plants occurredly packed.

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING IS IN THE RATING—L. UHDE and CO., in heading their announcement to the public as above, would rumark that the old adags is particularly appliable, from the fact that certain vendors of meat are mialeading the public by advertising long lists of prices, of what they would have you consider good wholescome food, but which, in reality, is unfit for the use of a respectable dog; and although the evil is one that will soon cure itself, for when you have been to these establishments once, you will swear that you will never go again—still L. UHDB and CO. deem it their duty to the public to guard them against such an imposition. They would inform the public, that at any of their four abops you can obtain the best MEAT at the LOWEST PRICE; that is to say, they are relatiling prime meat at the smallest remunerative profit, but they do not profess to sell Fork Sausages for 4d, when good pigs cannot be bought wholesale for less than 6d, per lb.; neither do they stiend the alungher-house, and buy that which is refused by most respectable butchers, known to the trade as lumpers, for 10a, and 15a, the carcase, but they buy the best and primest

FIRE AT THE CIRCULAR QUAY. FIRE AT THE CIRCULAR QUAY.
We stop the press to report the total destruction by fire of the building known as the Ice House, on the cast side of the Circular Q say. The flames were discovered at two o'clock; and two engines belonging to the No. 2 Volunteer Company were speedly on the rpvt, and subsequently one of the insurance companies' ragines, but their services were of little avail, the fire having got complete hold of the building, which was entirely of wood. Fortunately, the building was detached, and consequently its burning did not endanger any of the adjoining properties. The flames subsided soon after three o'clock. We believe that the premises had been for some time unoccupied.

SATURDAY, MAY 24, 1862.

THE recurrence of the QUEEN'S birthday will be marked by the ordinary celebrations, but with more than ordinary interest. A painful emotion will steal over the minds of her toyal subjects in remembrance of the shadow which overcasts this day—the bereavement of one who stood by her side when the birthday last dawned atood by her side when the birthday last dawned upon her. By this time no doubt the poignancy of grief is over. That happy ordination of nature by which the violence of grief yields to the gentle touch of time, without effacing one iota of the affection which dwells in the memory, will have rendered the QUEEN capable of appraisaling those blessings which survive. of appreciating those blessings which survive, and which, even her loss considered, still richly endow her auspicious reign. Perhaps no example of tender consideration has been presented in history equal to that shown to the Queen by the politicians of Great Britain. By one consent almost every question which could agitate the passions or divide the people, has been suspended in the Parliament, and leading statesmen on all sides have only been the organs of the public will—that not a single breath should agitate the surface of society which could augment her great domestic sorrow. Talk of chivalry in the ablastiment chivalry in the olden times! These are triumphs of freedom which, when purified from its false alloy, must produce in the minds of the people s more durable and respectful devotion than chivalry expresses—based as it will be on that sense of common interests which blend in one emotion the sovereign and the people. It is this which admits of a family celing even in an empire—to use a good though well-worn phrase—on which the sun never rets,-the vibration through all hearts of one shord in weal or woe. May no evil hour succeed this pensive but grateful epoch. We have reason to hope that by applying fairly and fully the great principles involved in the British Constitution, every form of national evil which can yield to the power of can yield to the power of man through the medium of legislation, will be effectually ar-rested and dispessed. We believe the time is coming when a more honourable appreciation of the uses of wealth will pervade the opulent circles. We believe that as among the ancient nations enormous accumu-lations of wealth were made subservient to popular corruption, to gladiatorial shows, or baths of gigantic proportions, and demoralising uses; and as in the middle ages men of uses; and as in the middle ages men of wealth made large donations to promote the diffusion of literature and piety, so at the present time immense efforts, sustained by resources equally copious, will be made to bring up to a higher level those who are now neglected and misemble. There is abundance of wealth, and every movement of society, while it promotes the power of accumulation, also epens avenues for the diffusion of knowledge and comfort among the people. among the people.

The QUEER's Birthday will find us this year in more quiet and fortunate circumstances than the last; not that there has been any such striking advance as to invite jubilation, or lead to speculative enterprise, but there is certainly employment—better wages, and free trade. This is the natural reaction of an enormous depression, and would be far more marked had not causes intervened which result from political ignorance. This, however, is not the moment to trace them, and we hope the whole popula-tion will turn out to day, should the skies be propitious, and we shall see how much cause we have to rejoice under the mild rule of VICTORIA, and the gracious providence of Gon.

The day will probably offer peculiar enjoyment and excitement to a large portion of the younger population. We are to have some 1400 Volunteers, the very pick and choice of our population, and whose training ought now to enable them to exhibit a military bearing, and to show that as they have strong limbs and gallant hearts, so they have skilful arms to defend their homes. None can have stronger convictions of the awful character of war, considered in the stronger convictions of the awful character of war, considered in the stronger convictions of the awful character of war, considered in the stronger convictions of the awful character of war, considered in the stronger convictions of the awful character of war, considered in the stronger convictions of the awful character of war, considered in the stronger convictions of the awful character of war, considered in the stronger convictions of the same character of war, considered in the stronger convictions of the same character of war, considered in the stronger convictions of the same character of war, considered in providence of Gon. sidered in its devastations, than ourselves, and we may well be warned of its possibility by the spec-tacle of America. There we have a people whose civilisation and intelligence ought to have preserved them from internecine war. We have in China a people whose unwarlike habits have rendered them a prey to destruction before which the example of America sinks into nothingness. There population perishes by famine, pestilence, and the sword, on a scale which more than surpasses the old examples regarded as the exaggerations of ancient histo rians. The two countries give each its lesson. A people without courage, without training to defend their homes, and long habituated to crouch before despotic power, have no self-reliance in the hour of peril, and become vicremands in the nour of perm, and become vic-tims to the organised marauders whom they invite by their riches, and encourage by their cowardice. We hope our colonists will always cultivate the arts of peace, while they regard the weapons of war as imposed by a necessity, and therefore to be held with firmness and decision. The time may come when the sentiments of peace will fill all nations, and when war shall become as unfrequent between nations as it is now among the same people. There are, however, advantages from military training independent of the purposes of defence; and we fancy that as the men who wear our uniform and carry our arms file before thousands of spectators, they will feel that there is a loftier height and more vigorous movement gained by the training and discipline of a well-appointed

Happily, we need not remind any part of the population to whom our influence is accessible, that times of festivity are occasionally times of excess. Whatever may be the general habits of excess. Whatever may be the general habits of a large class of the population—(and these we fear are not such as satisfy the patriot or the philanthropist)—the aspect of a public holiday rarely offends the sight, and often is a most cheering and delightful spectacle. Men might be happy, notwithstanding their natural sorrows, if they would. They have a large charter of enjoyment, signed and sealed by Heaven itself, and while they confine their pleasures within its four corners, they may pursue them with earnest vigour. We hope never to see our population slouching along in the dreamy apathy of a Turkiah people, drunk, not indeed with spirits, but with the fumes of physical and mental effeminacy. Life putting forth all its energy—absorbing all its surrounding elements of happiness—giving forth in the reciprocal relations of family life its return of common gratification, and manifested upon the large scale which can be presented by a great city or a great nation,

Thursday last was an interesting novelty. It was the first auction of the sort, but it establishes the practice to be followed in similar cases in future. The sale by auction of private inte-rest in runs has been common enough, but the Government interest has been generally dis-posed of by tender. The auction principle, though there may be some ebjections to it, is on the whole the best. In taking up new runs it cannot be applied, unless the Government were cannot be applied, unless the Government were to take upon itself the task of exploring and mapping out the wilderness. As it is the squatters are the explorers. When they want new country they grope about and find it, and by lendering for what they think will serve their purpose, obtain it. But when a run has once been defined, auction is the best method of determining who shall be the holder of it, and also of securing to the public revenue its full annual value. No one either can complain that squatters do not pay enough for their land when they pay a price that has been determined by public competition. During past years, it has been a standing popular complaint that the squatters do not pay enough. In this complaint there has been a popular complaint that the squatters do not pay enough. In this complaint there has been a great deal that is both ignorant and ungenerous. The squatter who takes up entirely new country has to go to considerable outlay, and incur considerable risk, and he does what it was open to any one else to have done before him if it had been worth while. If the run turns out to be a good one, and its value increases, the profit is only a compensation for the enterprise and the risk. It is a very mean includes to prise and the risk. It is a very mean jealousy to grudge to pioneers the fortunes that they may grudge to pioneers the fortunes that they may carve for themselves out of the wilderness. And if there were no prospect of considerable profit to be obtained, there would be less inducement to underge the hardships and fatigues of occupying waste country. I hat settlers under whose management waste lands have been proved to be productive, and to some extent made productive by the outlay of their capital, should be grudged the profit they may make on their venture, is only an illustration of that popular jealousy of success which seems to be a product of the democratic craving for equality. In some cases, no doubt. which seems to be a product of the democratic craving for equality. In some cases, no doubt, the profit has been unexpectedly large, and apparently out of all proportion to what could be considered due. But squatting is a very hazardous occupation, and often enteils great losses as well as brings in great gains. Occasional private are necessary to allure capital to sional prizes are necessary to allura capital to pursuits exposed to unavoidable risks. All cause of jealousy, however, must be removed in the case of squatters who buy their leasehold rights in the open market.

Why leaseholds should be sold by auction and fresholds should not, it might puzzle a Solon to discover, if he did not happen to know that we are in the enjoyment of class legislation, and that our land laws have been expressly designed to plague the rich and accommodate the poor. If, according to the popular doctrine, occupation of the land is of more importance than revenue, why should the last farthing be exacted from the leaseholder, who is an improving occupant? If, in harmony with sound policy, the public property ought to be disposed of at its fair value, why should the freeholder be allowed to buy land at a mere fraction of its real worth? In alienating the public estate we go upon one principle—in leasing it we go upon the opposit, these little inconsistencies are thought nothing of now-a-days.

Several of the runs that were offered on Thursday passed without a bidding. This was mostly the case with the smaller blocks. Yet mostly the case with the smaller blocks. Yet supposing the land to be worth anything at all, these blocks would seem to be the very thing to suit the race of small squatters, which the new Land Bill was expected to produce. Of course, they are out of the reach of the absolutely "poor man." The beat thing he can do is to turn to and work for wages, and by industry and frugality save a little money. But the small capitalist, accustomed to bush life, might be supposed able to make something out of small capitalist, accustomed to bush life, might be supposed able to make something out of these small runs, and it would be more satis-factory to set up in that way than to go free-selecting on a squatter's run, and extend opera-tions by stealthily poaching on his grazing ground. There is nothing too to hinder cultivation being carried on upon these runs, unless it were that the short term of the lease, which is only five years, would hardly justify the expense of clear-ing and fencing. The lessee would always have the option of buying the freehold of the land on which he had made his improvements. But that case he would have to pay twenty shillings cash, instead of five for each acre, be cause he would not apply in forma pauperis, but as a "bloated squatter." These small runs, a fair chance for those who wish to try their fortunes with small flocks and herds, and in course of time we may perhaps see them taken up, and their capacities developed, by the class for which they are adapted. They are, of course, open to free selection by anybody that may discover their value. The lessee must take his chance in this respect. It is this risk which is most likely to operate as a discouragement to improvements. But where discouragement to improvements. But where the land is poor the risk may really be very small. According to the regulations, leases that have been twice offered for sale by auction and not taken up, may be obtained at a rent of not less than ten pounds,—but it is necessary that they should have been twice put up. Even then, the MINISTER FOR LANDS, if he thinks the applicant is very anxious for the land, and that more rent could be squeezed out of him, is at liberty to put it up to auction again. The object of this is to discourage free selection in runs, and prevent any squatters from getting runs for less than they are worth. Favourable runs, and prevent any squatters from getting runs for less than they are worth. Favourable as we are to the auction test, it may be pushed to an extreme, and we think that no prectical evil would arise if the same principle that has so long applied to rural sections were allewed to apply to runs, viz., that after having once passed the hammer they might be taken at the upset price.

The upset price which was fixed for all the runs offered on Thursday, was at the rate of a pound per square mile. The MINISIER FOR LANDS is at liberty to reduce this upset price down to as low as ten pounds for the block, but in the first instance a pound per square mile is the Government price. For most of the runs, however, an advance on the upset was obtained, in some cases slight, in others very considerable. Runs differ from one another in value as much as houses or farms. Some runs are dear as sift—others are fortunes. Situation, soil, the upset price. much as houses or farms. Some runs are dear at a gift—others are fortunes. Situation, soil, natural drainage, climate, water supply, proximity to market—all these things affect the value of a run, and some of them are only ascertainable after occupation. For some few runs near the Darling, very high rentals were offered. In respect of these runs the country had the advantage of the competition of Melbourne buyers. It is principally to the Melbourne market, that the stock fattened in our far west is sent for is surely beautiful to the eye and gratifying to the understanding, and we hope the celebration of the day will be as much as ever worthy of a loyal and Christian people.

Sele, and Melbourne equatters have, to a very large extent, colonised that part of our territory. The price however of fat cattle, has fallen so much of late, that the profits derived from preparing beasts for the Melbourne butchers are not what they used to be Rut the competition for choice runs pear be. But the competition for choice runs near the Darling, shows that there are some at least who still think the overland trade worth attending to. The navigability of the Darling, though at present only partially developed, greatly en-hances the value of runs that are within reasonable reach of the river. The cost of carriage where there is a long land journey is a serious item in the annual expenses of a station, and where this can be reduced by water-carriage the saving on that item alone would come to more than the rent paid to the Government. Of course, all the river-borne Government. Of course, all the Inver-porae traffic of the Darling is carried down either to South Australia or Victoria. The land belongs to New South Wales, but geographical considerations prevent its commerce from feed-ing the business of the metropolitan harbour. We get the rent of the land from the squatters who occupy it, and we get the Customs revenue on the dutiable goods they consume, which are brought up by the river, though not on what comes from Melbourne, but the trade becomes the appanage of the neighbouring colonies.

This trade seems likely to increase. Mixed up with a good deal of indifferent country, the land back from the Darling, right-away to the western and northern boundaries of the colony, is still capable of carrying large numbers of sheep, and its occupation will steadily advance year by year. In that remote region the danger of being interfered with by free-selectors, is practically so small as to be inappreciable. Agricul-ture is utterly impossible in so arid a territory; and no small freeholder could live upon his land. In so purely pastoral a country, it is folly to spply a system that is specially in-tended for the promotion of agriculture, but that the idea of allowing squatters anywhere to have a quiet and guaranteed tenure is too ab-borrent to be entertained Under the old tender system, a high price was often collusively offered for land simply far the purpose of keeping neighbours away. The successful tenderer purposely committed default of payment, and so obtained the gratuitous use of the land till it could be tendered for again. Under the present system, however, this is checked, because payment in cash for the first year's rent is required on the fall of the hammer, and the biddings on Thursday may, theremer, and the biddings on Thursday may, therefore, all be looked upon as bona fide. The Hogan country, which was offered for sale, was once an aboriginal reserve, and on being subdivided for occupation, the runs had the advantage of a Government survey, so that disputed boundaries are almost impossible. Though intermixed with some scrubby land the country is well suited for pastoral purposes, and may be made to carry either cattle or sheep. In dry seasons, however, water is precious.

PLEURO PNEUMONIA

Siz.—I have the honour to report that I have inspected the country for upwards of 100 miles along the horour type of the cattle labouring under pleuro-pneumonis.

I may state that not only was this inspection, though a comparatively harried one, a very fair tost of the several stations passed through from its being made on the ground nearest to Victoria; but the season being a very fry one, and there being little or no water in the back country, the cattle are now nearly life or the frontage.

Thering my inspection I killed five head of cattle which exhibitions of disease in the lungs, but I found, on examinations.

That the tract of country now mentioned is free from discase may be attributed mainly to the strict manner is which the prehibition against bullock tenna crossing from Victoria has been enforced by the police magnistrakes and the settlers, and to the runs being nearly all fenced in.

I have yet to inspect the country along the Murray, for about larty-sive miles below Albury, the report on which I expect to be able to forward in the course of this weat,

THE BOTANY BAILWAY.

THE BOTANY RAILWAY.

A DEFINATION appointed at a meeting of the provisional directors of the Botany Railway Company as first, waited yeared ay morning upon the Minister for Works, for last, waited yeared morning upon the Minister for Works, for last, waited yeared company to run upon a portion of the Parramsta line. The following gratilemen composed the departation:—Mr. Holl, M.L.A.; Mr. Lucas, Mr. Lucas, M.L.A.; Mr. Lucas, M.L.A.; Mr. Lucas, M.L.A.; Mr. Lucas, M

Mr. Annoth: I do not see any objection to your joining the Government salway as a branch line, and to out control in a transgements with you similar to show with the Wallsend and Minnil Companies.

Mr. Lucas: We propose to have the same arrangement as was provided in the Mailtand and Morpeth Railway Company's Bill, under which they we e to make use of the Gavernment rolling stock.

Mr. Annoth: I never supported such a proposition. I did not oppose the bill, because at the time it was introduced the Government rolling stock.

Mr. Annoth: I never supported such a proposition. I did not oppose the bill, because at the time it was introduced the Government tell what succediments might have been made in the bill if it had been passed.

Mr. Lucas: But you stated in the Assembly that you had no objection to the Morpeth Railway making use of the Government line.

Mr. Annoth: I did not say anything of the kind. I have always acted on the principle of refusing such applications.

Mr. Lucas: But you will have no objection to either our engines running upon the Government line, or to the Government line.

Mr. Annoth: We will do drive engines.

Mr. Annoth: We will do drive engines.

Mr. Annoth: We will do drive engines.

Mr. Annoth: We will a be probably want a sufficient wind the proposition is before us, we cannot decide where we can receive it. We shall probably want a sufficient amount of traine guaranteed to prove remunerative. You can judge from what we have done in shoulist cases whether it will be to your interest to join our line. We san either do the hailange on the entire line, or allow you to do it on the Government line. For the Wallsend Company we do the whole hailange up to the pits, but for the Minni Company we take the trains that we would do their hailane, company sectially requested that we would do their hailane, of company we take the trains that we would do their hailane, of company sectially requested that we would do their hailane company we do the spide to do the operation of the deputation of the d quite sufficient without our owns peace agent to perform them.

Mr. Amount: I meant this: that it would not do for us to engage—whether your submer succeeded or falled—to draw your trains. If, at the end of a certain time, we found we were rearning at a loss, we should forminate the arrangement. Our objection to allowing any but our own engines to run on our times is, that otherwise we should be perpetually incorrectioned by seeing engines runbing about in all directions.

Mr. Lucas: There is a double line as far as Parramatta, and the trains would therefore come in on one line and quow, on the the trains would therefore come in on one line and gu out on the color.

Mr. Willynn: The objection in the case of slouble line is of course not so great as where there is only a single one.

The plaintiff (the well-known cricketor) was an officer of Government in the Road department, having charge, as surveyor, of a portion of the Great Westorn Road. This coach was, however, so crowied that there was no room for plaintiff. He left this coach therefore further down the road, and got on the box of the "Voluntors," one of defendant's coaches, in which at that time there was only the proper number of passengers. The Volunteer was an American coach, with an awning, but otherwise open. It was driven by a man named Mortimer. Despite of the remonstrance of plaintiff, Mortimer raced futurely all along the road with Crane and Roberts' coach. Plaintiff pointed out the great risk of a capsiss, but Mortimer asid that there was no fear, and that he could not allow the opposition coach was an ammed Cook, seated himself upon the road state the recing still went on, and the opposition coach was considerably distanced. THE VINBYARD, of between 2 and 3 acres, comprises all the very best varieties of table grapes, all in fail bearing, and giving a very large annual yield.

THE FARM LAND UNDER CULTIVATION is about 17 acres, yielding rich hay crops, and an abundance of very tables, &c.

*This land is under a course of preparation for the extension of the orangery and orchard, or may be most profitally continued for the present purpose.

The BRUSH LANDS, about 37 acres, are all of RICH SOLL, admirably adapted for shunest any kind of cultivation, with some fine timber upon thom.

THE BULDINGS are an overseer's cottage, labourers' buts, a four-stall stable, a fruit-house, and a large cart abed, with fruit-loft over it, also two large hay sheds.

THE WHOLE PROPERTY is substantially enclosed, the orangery, orchard, and vineyard, on three sides, by paling fence, and on the other side by 4-rall pig proof fence—the remaining portions or farm lands, by a substantial 3-rail fence.

The property has been inspected by almost every visitor of nore to New South Wales, many of them nen of travelled experience, one and all of whom have declared it equal to anything they have seen in the old world, not even excepting the famous orangeries of Spain,—INDLED it is the GREAT SIGHT of the COUNTRY.

MORT and CO. feel that any attempt on their part to give an adequate description of the property would be a hopoloss task, they, therefore, most earnestly invite an inspection of it. The orangery and orchard might be continued over the entire extent of the property, as the land is all of the same rich quality, and the aspects of the varium alopes particularly fitted for the purpose. In give some idea of the value of this property, it may be mentioned that the entire expense of working and carrying it on is covered by the orchard and vineyard, leaving the produce of the orangery, which carnot be estimated at iees than a COUPLE of THOUSAND POUNDS PER YEAR as CLEAR PROFIT.

In conclusion, it may be announced that the property in the market for bona fide sale, as Mr. Hill is about t leave New South Wales, his properties in New Zealand requiring his own personal attention.

Any further information may be obtained from MORT and CO, who, in this instance, are enabled to speak from a personal inspection of the property.
